Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Rhodes Memorial at Oxford the Work of Cecil Rhodes The impressive words of Lord Rosebery when he unveiled the Rhodes Memorial at Oxford on the 12th June, brought vividly to my mind a still more interesting and a still larger subject - the work of Cecil Rhodes. What a colossal work it was! And yet I was assured the other day that in England it seems already half-forgotten. Can that be possible? Is it really necessary to preface this sonnet-sequence by glancing at it? Twenty-five years before he made the will whose provisions were the subject of Lord Rosebery's speech, Rhodes when he was a mere boy drew up a will in his own hand-writing which opens with these words: I contend that the British race is the finest that history has yet produced. And in this belief - in the belief that it would be good for the world for the finest race to dominate it - he worked during all his life.
