Excerpt: . from that source, decreed that images must by all means be had and retained in churches, and that due honour is to be paid to them, appealing at the same time to the second Nicene Council for the assertion, that the honour paid to an image is passed on to the prototype, and authoritatively pronouncing that difference to exist between idol-worship among the heathen, and imageworship among Christians, which has been shewn in the course of this work to be groundless, imaginary, and contrary to the fact. On the nature of the worship or adoration paid to images in the Church of Rome, and held to be of right due to them, we have seen how various and irreconcilable are the opinions and doctrines of Romanist teachers, and how contradictory they are, not only to each other, but, in some cases, to the authorised services of the Church of Rome. The opinions, and arguments, and doctrines, and rubrics, and religious acts and ceremonies, and prayers which demonstrate this point, are placed parallel to one another in the Preface to this work. section ii. But we are still met by assurances from many quarters, that the members of the Church of Rome do not, and need not pray to the cross or images, or adore them, or pay them religious worship, or give praise to them. Indeed, since this work has been in the press, the author has been repeatedly informed, that Roman Catholics,...
