If the harpy eagle soars not aloft, hovering over plains and mountains, it threads the woods, and with unerring aim, strikes its defenceless victims. Death seems the work of an instant; the strongest of these animals, powerless in his grasp, is clutched and expires. Strong as are the talons of the golden eagle, great as is the muscular development of its limbs, and formidable as are its claws, they seem almost trifling compared with those of the harpy eagle. It is interesting to compare the skeletons of these birds. The bones of the harpy are in thickness more than double that of the golden eagle, and the enormous size of the talons is sufficient to convince the observer of the ease with which this fierce bird could bury its claws in the vitals of its prey. In its native regions the harpy eagle is by no...
